

SHAPING UP NETWORKS FOR BETTER ACTION

Setting up stakeholders networks and enable decompartmentalization is a verified necessity for CARI, and guarantees an increased efficiency of actions towards development.

The CARI oversees 4 international solidarity stakeholder networks.

« Inside a given network, contributors reinforce one another. »

Desertification Task Group

This french stakeholder platform (NGO, scientists, private structures and local authorities) aiming to reinforce consultation and actions between development key players, to raise awareness and impact decision-makers.

Desertification spreads

over 40 % of emerged land on the planet and impacts nearly 2 billion people.

Faced with that alarming reality, CARI acts in favor of sustainable land management and to protect natural resources,

as ways to combat poverty.

To do so, CARI :

- ↳ Promotes consultation and dialogue
- ↳ Favors collaborative undertakings with a multi-stakeholder and participatory approach
- ↳ Applies the subsidiarity principle
- ↳ Guarantees rigor and transparency

CARI's originality resides in their ability to collaborate with numerous partners, thus reaching local, national and international scales with their actions: inter-State institutions, research institutions, professional organizations, basic communities...

In their view of development, CARI aims to accompany field action and support sustainable agriculture by increasing the development key players' capabilities and advocating for national and international policies.

« Reinforcing capabilities of local stakeholders in order to allow them to acquire means for their own development. »

AN INNOVATIVE VIEW OF DEVELOPMENT

CARI does not intend to supersede local competence. They act by accompanying civil society organizations and local authorities:

- ↳ Help with stakeholder networking
- ↳ Methodological backing in project management
- ↳ Support to local authorities with land-use planning
- ↳ Technical training

PROMOTING TOMORROW'S SUSTAINABLE AGRICULTURE

CARI promotes sustainable agricultural models (agroecology, family farming) to address the challenges of drylands soil degradation by taking action on the ground and encouraging information and knowledge exchange and build up:

- ↳ Exchanges between farmers
- ↳ Support towards agroecological transition
- ↳ Agroecological technical training and counseling
- ↳ Designing methodological guides and tools to build awareness

EASE OF ACCESS TO INFORMATION RESOURCES

Devoted to combat desertification, CARI's resource center is nurtured by civil society stakeholders. It offers contacts listings, documentation, videos...
